Enforcement of environmental laws to perpetrators of corporate crime is not easy, because it is an organized crime. Criminal Justice System in Indonesia is still focused on actors should be someone who is accountable will become more complicated when the crimes committed in the form of corporate crime that is not as simple as what was adopted by Indonesia. One approach that can be done in the framework of criminal law enforcement environment is the "multi-door" approach, this approach is a process and a form of institutionalization of the rule of law, especially in the handling of cases of natural resources are expected to provide a deterrent effect optimally and restore justice and the rights to good environment and healthy and economic rights, social and cultural (local) in the region and around the forest.
